

HOW MARINE SERGEANT GAVE RECRUITING BOOST

Made Repairs to Automobile and in Return Obtained Display of Poster.

Two ladies, visiting members of the D. A. R., were motoring along Massachusetts avenue a few afternoons ago, when one of the tires of their machine had a blowout. The streets were filled with business people and government employees returning to their homes.

Each group of men passing would smile wisely and pass on. One young man stopped and asked the ladies if they would accept his services. They eagerly replied in the affirmative.

"But," said one, "what can you do to help us?"

"It is my business to be able to do anything," said he, and set to work.

He found that there was no extra tire on the machine, that the inner tube had blown out because of the flatness of the outer casing. In the tool box he found a spare inner casing and some cement.

In fifteen minutes he had made repairs.

"I'm very grateful to you for what you've done," said one. "How can I repay you?"

"Very easily," said he, drawing a recruiting poster from his pocket. "Put this on your windshield and boost the 'draftee' cause. I'll be glad to be a sergeant of marines, and we need 15,000 men."

"I never saw such an organization in my life," said one of the ladies after the sergeant had left. "They're veritable crusaders, and their enthusiasm is positively contagious. If there was a man I would join them myself."

HER MALE ATTIRE FAILS TO SERVE AS A DISGUISE

Miss Edith McCord Arrested While Waiting for Train at Union Station.

Miss Edith McCord, nineteen years old, wearing male attire and her hair cut short, sat in the office of Inspector Grant, chief of detectives, at police headquarters yesterday afternoon, and made it plain that she was terribly disappointed. She had bought a ticket and was about to board a train to go to Newark, N. J., when Chief Horne of the Washington terminal police, and Detective O'Brien, called her to one side and told her she was under arrest.

Miss McCord came here from San Francisco about a year ago. She had a barber visit her home at 150 1/2 street southwest yesterday and cut about three feet of hair from her head.

"And every woman must admit that mens' clothes are much more comfortable and comfortable than dresses," she remarked.

Miss McCord was arrested on complaint of her mother.

STAVING OFF VISITORS.

State, War and Navy Departments Facilitate Business.

A good deal of the routine business of visitors to the State, War and Navy departments now is transacted at the main entrance of the building housing those departments. That service is performed by representatives of the three departments in charge of bureaus of information. Miss Mary Greer of the office of foreign trade adviser represents the State Department; John B. Randolph, chief of the trade division of the War Department; and Magnus Thompson of the library, the Navy Department. Most of the business of the constant throng of visitors is disposed of by these representatives at the main entrance, and it is only when that is not possible that the visitors are permitted to enter the building and see officials in person. Each of the representatives at the door has telephonic connection with the executive offices of the departments, and much of the business is done over the wire.

DECISION ON COMMITTEES.

Chamber of Commerce Not to Define Duties More Strictly.

That it would be inadvisable to define the duties of the various committees of the Washington Chamber of Commerce any further than is already done through the names by which the committees are designated was decided at a meeting of the executive committee of the Chamber at the New Ebbitt House yesterday.

It was decided that in specific cases where questions arose as to which committee should be given jurisdiction over the questions should be referred to the committees between the conflict of jurisdiction was taken in accordance with action recently taken by the chamber.

OBJECT TO UNDERTAKER.

No Law to Prevent Location in a Residential Section.

Protest against the proposed location of an undertaking establishment at 14th and Harvard streets northwest was made to Commissioner Brown yesterday by a committee of residents of that section. It was contended that the business enterprise would be an injury to the neighborhood, which is residential in character.

At the suggestion of the Commissioner, the committee conferred with Assistant Corporation Counsel Stephens, who expressed the opinion that there is no law governing the case. Mr. Stephens suggested that the department consider petitioners conducting a public hearing to determine whether or not there should be established a regulation requiring the consent of adjacent property owners and residents to the establishment of an undertaking business. It was said that the Commissioners probably will announce a hearing for this purpose at an early date.

Court Orders Prisoner's Release.

Justice McCoy of the District Supreme Court has directed that a charge against B. Barrett, who has been on bail since last Saturday awaiting a hearing on a petition in habeas corpus, which he sued out against Raymond W. Pullman, superintendent of police, who was alleged without placing a charge against him. As no return was made to the court directed the release of Barrett, Justice McCoy was requested by Attorney Michael F. Mangano.

More Care on Dairy Farms.

Although medical supervision of employees on dairy farms is not required under the regulations of the Department of Agriculture, that office has announced that dairy farmers who voluntarily maintain such supervision will receive credit thereon on their monthly dairy farm score card. This movement is encouraged in the hope of patting a card which, though not legally required, is considered highly essential from a scientific and sanitary standpoint.

MUTT AND JEFF: What's the Use of Being a Nathan Hale If You Don't Get Shot.

JEFF, IT'S YOUR DUTY TO GO AND ENLIST AT ONCE AND FIGHT FOR THE COUNTRY!

AND THEN AFTER YOU'RE SHOT ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE, WITH YOUR LAST BREATH YOU CAN PULL A "NATHAN HALE SPEECH" AND GO DOWN IN HISTORY AS A HERO WITH YOUR STATUS IN THE PARK.

WHY SHOULD I FIGHT FOR THE COUNTRY WHEN I LIVE IN THE CITY?

I'LL GO INTO THE OTHER ROOM AND THINK IT OVER.

SAY, MUTT! BUT SUPPOSE I DON'T GET SHOT!

AW! THERE YOU GO AGAIN! YOU ALWAYS WERE A PESSIMIST!
